

Helping More New Yorkers Manage Energy Costs

If you're having trouble paying your bill, we want to help. That's why we advocated for the New York Enhanced Energy Affordability Program (EEAP), so even more New Yorkers can save on their energy bills.

Now, New Yorkers with household incomes below the area median may be eligible for bill discounts.

About the Enhanced Energy Affordability Program (EEAP)

What is EEAP? The Enhanced Energy Affordability Program is a statewide initiative that provides customers with discounts on their energy bills.

Who is eligible? Households with incomes that fall below the area median for New York City and Westchester may be eligible to receive discounts.

To qualify based on income, you must:

- Be a residential customer.
- Receive electric and/or gas service from Con Edison.
- Not be enrolled in a qualifying government assistance program.
- Earn less than the household area median income thresholds.

Household size	Income
1	$113,400
2	$129,600
3	$145,800
4	$162,000
5	$175,000
6	$188,000
7	$200,900
8	$213,900

How much is the bill discount? Discounts range from $1 to $135.24 and vary based on whether you use electricity or gas for heating and your household income and size.

Do the discounts expire? Yes. You'll receive discounts for 18 months after you enroll, but you must reapply to remain in the program. You'll receive a letter, email, and text message with information when it's time to reapply.

Government Assistance Energy Affordability Program (EAP)

If you receive assistance through the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP), Temporary Aid to Needy Families (TANF), Direct Vendor or Utility Guarantee, or Safety Net Assistance (SNA), you may have been signed up automatically into our Energy Affordability Program. You can check by logging in to My Account or reviewing the "Adjustment Information" section of your bill.

Find out more about both programs and enroll at conEd.com/EAP.
